BUNKERS UNDERNEATH THIRUMANGALAM FLYOVER REMAIN A MYSTERY

By N Rathi Chithra

If you are passing by the Thirumangalam flyover on the Jawaharlal Nehru Salai, more popularly known in common parlance as the 100 Feet Road, you are sure to come across some tin structures beneath the flyover. These bunkers are prominently visible to any passer by and motorist near the Thirumangalam Junction as they take a left turn towards Red Hills Road or while coming from Red Hills Road and proceeding towards Koyambedu.

Well what are these bunkers doing there? Not many seem to have any clue about it. But everyone has seen them.

"From the look of it, these bunkers appear to be abandoned police posts or a waiting room for a traffic policeman. But now that it is in a state of disuse, we can't tell for sure. But one thing is certain, abandoning these bunker like structures beneath the flyover is a waste of public money and also an eyesore," said Alaguraj, a vendor near the Asiad Colony, which is located opposite the Thirumangalam flyover.

The bunkers have been lying beneath the flyover for many months now say those using the stretch on a regular basis. "Out of curiosity, I have often wondered what they are but have not got any convincing response. There is definitely no way that it was a private property. I do feel it is an abandoned facility that could have possibly been once upon a time used by government officials. The least the authorities could do is to remove them from the spot and put them to some other efficient use if possible. Leaving them here makes absolutely no sense," said Kalaimagal, who identified herself as a resident of the Rohini Flats which is located a few hundred metres away from the Thirumangalam flyover.

In any case, local people feel that the flyover is no place to dump unwarranted junk. "Government authorities are launching so many campaigns in favour of maintaining our surroundings clean. The flyover is a government owned and government maintained property. When we park our vehicles beneath the flyover, the traffic police personnel object to it saying it is unauthorised to do so. That being the case, how can they allow these bunkers to be junked here," asked Kalaimagal.

Plastics Still Make Their Way to Dustbins

By N Rathi Chithra

Two months after the Tamil Nadu Government banned manufacture, storage, sale and usage of single-use plastic items, there are telltale signs of the ban being violated in the neighbourhoods of Mogappair and Anna Nagar as is the case in many other parts of the city.

The garbage bins in street corners and roadsides, placed by the Greater Chennai Corporation, in Mogappair East, Mogappair West, Nolambur and Anna Nagar are still overflowing with wastes dumped in polythene carry bags. This bears testimony to the violation of the ban order and the wider prevalence of the use of carry bags despite the Government conducting an awareness campaign on the need to end the use of single-use plastics to save the environment from degradation.

Conservancy workers, engaged by a private contractor authorised by the Greater Chennai Corporation, say that even over 60 days after the ban, it is very common to find polythene carry bags with household waste being dumped in garbage bins on a daily basis. "Each morning we find heaps of polythene bags containing household waste. We thought after the ban this practice will end. But that has not been the case. Even now we find dogs and cattle foraging these carry bags looking for food. Most often we come across rotten food waste from the kitchens inside the carry bag," said a conservancy worker, who did not give out her name.

Many of these carry bags are not recyclable as they are of less than 40 microns thickness, which worsens the problem.

Some neighbourhood environmental activists wonder where these carry bags come from. "Post-ban, all retail outlets are required to end the practice of giving shopping consignments in polythene carry bags. Instead they are expected to use biodegradable stuff such as carry bags made out of paper and cloth. However, by the look of what goes into our neighbourhood's garbage bins it appears that these plastic carry bags are still being widely distributed in retail outlets. In turn they are being used by households to dispose of their kitchen waste. We need to increase awareness on the ban on single use plastics to end this menace," said Meera Nair, a housewife and green activist in Mogappair neighbourhood.

Eri Scheme First Main Road Requires Repairs

By Our Correspondent

The Eri Scheme First Main Road, which connects Mogappair East and West besides being an important link to parts of Nolambur, is in need of repair works. The tar road has given way at some places on the main street making it a rough ride for vehicle users.

"This was one of the good roads in the Mogappair and Eri Scheme neighbourhood as some top police officers live in the locality. More than three years ago contractors engaged by the government authorities had laid very good road here using tar and bitumen. However, in between, the civic agencies had dug up the Eri Scheme First Main Road for laying underground sewage pipelines and did not cover is properly. This and the regular usage have led to wear and tear resulting in large battered patches at some places on the road," pointed out Kamalini, a resident of an apartment off Eri Scheme First Main Road.

Since a private school is located close by the road is used by hundreds of parents on a daily basis. Besides, all those going to Ambattur Industrial Estate and Mogappair West from neighbourhoods in Mogappair East also use the road regularly. Even Metropolitan Transport Corporation (MTC) buses ply on this stretch thereby making it a well used road.

The scattered patches of potholes make it difficult for riders especially those on two-wheelers. "Not that life is any easy for car drivers. When driving fast, the vehicle's bumpers some times get hit on the potholes.

Also the suspension of the wheels get damaged due to this. Of course, for two-wheeler riders it is worse as they have to balance on the potholes. But no one has paid attention to the need to relay such an important road," lamented, Pathy, another resident of an apartment in the Eri Scheme neighbourhood.

A cross section of residents and vehicle users insist that the potholes be covered properly with blue metal and tar. "The relaying works on potholed stretches should be done in such a manner that the surface is even with the existing road. Otherwise, despite covering the potholes the bumpy ride factor will remain making the road repair exercise a mockery," argued Pathy.

Buttermilk for traffic police

The city police began distributing buttermilk to personnel manning traffic intersections from March 1. Commissioner of Police A K Viswanathan, launched the initiative.
